Ocean Safety to showcase its innovative lifesaving product ranges at boot Dusseldorf 2022

Marine safety equipment specialist, Ocean Safety will be showcasing its innovative lifesaving product ranges at boot Dusseldorf when the show returns on 22nd January 2022.

Hosted by Ocean Safety's German leisure distributor, SOSTECHNIC, the company will display its industry leading Jon Buoy Man Overboard (MOB) Recovery range. Manufactured using the highest-visibility fabrics available to date, the range features the cutting-edge retro-reflective Glo Lite technology that significantly enhances the visibility of the Jon Buoy recovery module, horseshoe, danbuoy and rescue sling, especially at night.

Making its show debut is Ocean Safety's new man overboard MOB recovery range, which includes a new Throw Line and MOB Ladder, designed to make it easier for crew members to reach and recover a someone in the water.

Representing Ocean Safety's range of liferafts will be the recently updated, Ocean ISO. Fully compliant to ISO 9650, this award-winning liferaft has an advanced container making it lighter to handle and easier to launch - ideal for leisure vessels venturing further afield.

Ocean Safety's expertly engineered eponymous lifejacket range will also be at boot Düsseldorf. Ideal for inshore, coastal or offshore boating, the jacket's scoop neck design sits away from the neck, increasing movement and comfort. With a model to suit every sailor from professional racer to motorboat cruiser, the Ocean Safety collection is designed to be worn.

In addition to its extensive range of safety equipment, Ocean Safety will also be displaying a selection of quality safety products from its core suppliers, including Aquaspec and Ocean Signal.

Ocean Safety will be on stand A21 in Hall 11. As well as giving product advice Ocean Safety's team of marine safety experts will be there to provide advice on servicing schedules, winterisation and coding.
