Leading lifesaving equipment from Ocean Safety on display at boot Dusseldorf 2023

Ocean Safety will be shining a spotlight on marine safety and showcasing an extensive selection of its innovative lifesaving equipment at boot Dusseldorf, 21-29 January 2023.

The marine safety specialist will be hosted by its German leisure distributor, SOSTECHNIC in Hall 11. On display will be the complete range of the industry leading Jon Buoy Man Overboard (MOB) Recovery products, including the latest addition – the Jon Buoy Recovery Module MK 6.

Designed to make it easier for crew members to reach and recover someone in the water, Ocean Safety's Jon Buoy Recovery Module complements the other products in the Jon Buoy range, all of which will be exhibited on the SOSTECHNIC stand. This innovative MOB range includes a Throw Line and MOB Ladder.

Ideal for leisure vessels venturing further afield, the award-winning Ocean ISO will represent Ocean Safety's range of liferafts. Fully compliant to ISO 9650, this user-friendly liferaft has an advanced container making it lighter to handle and easier to launch.

Expertly engineered, Ocean Safety's eponymous lifejacket range will also be at boot Düsseldorf. Ideal for inshore, coastal or offshore boating, the jacket's scoop neck design sits away from the neck, increasing movement and comfort. With a model to suit every sailor from professional racer to motorboat cruiser, the Ocean Safety collection is designed to be worn.

In addition to its range of vital lifesaving equipment, Ocean Safety will present a selection of quality safety products from its core suppliers.

Throughout the show, as well as giving product advice, Ocean Safety's team of marine safety experts will be on hand to advise on servicing schedules, winterisation and coding.
